OR2009-02130

Dear Mr. Mann:

You ask whether certain information is subject to required public disclosure under the Public Information Act (the "Act"), chapter 552 of the Government Code. Your request was assigned ID# 338982 (GCA08-0054).

The Garland Police Department (the "department") received a request for information pertaining to the requestor's 2005 arrest. You claim that portions of the requested information are excepted from disclosure under sections 552.101, 552.130, and 552.136 of the Government Code. We have considered the exceptions you claim and reviewed the submitted information.

Section 552.101 of the Government Code excepts "information considered to be confidential by law, either constitutional, statutory, or by judicial decision." Gov't Code § 552.101. This section encompasses the doctrine of common-law privacy. Common-law privacy protects information if (1) the information contains highly intimate or embarrassing facts the publication of which would be highly objectionable to a reasonable person, and (2) the information is not of legitimate concern to the public. Indus. Found. v. Tex. Indus. Accident Bd., 540 S.W.2d 668, 685 (Tex. 1976). The type of information considered intimate and embarrassing by the Texas Supreme Court in Industrial Foundation included information relating to sexual assault, pregnancy, mental or physical abuse in the workplace, illegitimate children, psychiatric treatment of mental disorders, attempted suicide, and injuries to sexual organs. Id. at 683. A compilation of an individual's criminal history is highly embarrassing information, the publication of which would be highly objectionable to a reasonable person.

Cf. U. S. Dep't of Justice v. Reporters Comm. for Freedom of the Press, 489 U.S. 749, 764 (1989) (when considering prong regarding individual's privacy interest, court recognized distinction between public records found in courthouse files and local police stations and compiled summary of information and noted that individual has significant privacy interest in compilation of one's criminal history). Moreover, we find a compilation of a private citizen's criminal history is generally not of legitimate concern to the public. We agree that the information you have marked in purple in the submitted information is confidential under common-law privacy and that the department must withhold it under section 552.101.

Next, you assert that a portion of the remaining information is confidential under section 552.130 of the Government Code, which excepts from disclosure information relating to a Texas driver's license and information relating to a Texas motor vehicle title or registration. Gov't Code § 552.130. Thus, you must withhold the information you have marked in green under section 552.130 of the Government Code.

Finally, you claim that the marked bank account information and credit card numbers are excepted from disclosure under section 552.136 of the Government Code. Section 552.136 provides that "[n]otwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, a credit card, debit card, charge card, or access device number that is collected, assembled, or maintained by or for a governmental body is confidential." Gov't Code § 552.136. Accordingly, the department must withhold the information you have marked in blue pursuant to section 552.136 of the Government Code.

In summary, the department must withhold the information you have marked in purple under section 552.101 of the Government Code in conjunction with common-law privacy. The department must withhold the Texas motor vehicle information you have marked in green under section 552.130 of the Government Code. The department must withhold the information you have marked in blue under section 552.136 of the Government Code. The remaining information must be released.<sup>1</sup>
